SHARK WEEK
Famed marine biologist and shark expert Barbara Block has been studying the white sharks off the shores of California for more than 27 years. Now, with breakthrough camera and tracking technology, she is giving scientists, and viewers, a portrait of an unseen domain like never before. Blue Serengeti reveals this rich but hidden world and its inhabitants by deploying cameras on both predator and prey.

Famed shark photographer Chris Fallows embarks on his 8th Air Jaws adventure, this time joining University of Miami shark biologist Neil Hammerschlag as they discover how great white sharks hunt in total darkness.

While searching for Joan of Shark in Shark Week ’15, scientists followed great white migration patterns and may have stumbled upon where massive female great whites give birth. Retracing their steps, they are now returning to this small area to get up-close and personal with the planet’s largest great whites in the hopes of uncovering one of the most elusive of discoveries ... the birth place of great white sharks.

Using visceral scientific experiments, cutting-edge research and thrilling historical evidence, Deadliest Shark aims to first decide if the oceanic white tip is indeed the world’s most dangerous shark.
The vast rainforests of Central America are already home to deadly spiders, venomous snakes, fierce jaguars and giant crocodiles. And are they clashing with the jungle’s other great predator, the crocodile?

JUNGLE SHARK
Discovery HD 1x60
The vast rainforests of Central America are already home to deadly spiders, venomous snakes, fierce jaguars and giant crocodiles. And are they clashing with the jungle’s other great predator, the crocodile?

THE KILLING GAMES

But with the help of a fully functional animatronic seal and new camera technology, scientists attempt to capture this game-changing behaviour.

LIVING WITH SHARKS
Discovery HD 1x60
Shark attacks seem to be increasing with frightening regularity around the globe. The solutions to deal with the public’s growing anxiety range from culling to using nets and drum lines. So far, all of these solutions are either cruel or deadly or both. Now, he has to get in the water with the most dangerous sharks on Earth to prove it.
