DEATH DEFYING SPACE STUNTS

Produced by Russia 1 / 2005
1 X 60

In the summer of 1960, the Secret Institute of Aviation Medicine selected six pilots to be the first group of cosmonauts. Although the Soviet Union was ready to send a man into space, no one knew the effects of space travel on humans. These candidates started training under a special program that had not been fully developed. They were put through rigorous physical tests. For the first time ever, we see footage from the institute’s film archive of these human subjects and the extreme tests they had to endure.

DOGS IN SPACE

Produced by Russia 1 / 2004
1 X 60

Before the first man was put into orbit, Soviet scientists sent two furry, four-footed cosmonauts, “Belka” and “Strelka.” In total, 14 dogs were prepared for space flights. They were dressed in special suits and their carotid arteries were removed and placed in separate flaps to easily check their pulses. This documentary contains unique footage from the first ever “dog flight” in space, filmed within the canine space capsule.

RACE TO THE MOON

Produced by Russia 1 / 2006
1 X 60

The success of Apollo 11, the first manned mission to the moon, ended the “space race” between the United States and the Soviet Union. But few know just how close that mission was to disaster. On July 16, 1969, the day of the Apollo 11 launch, a Russian rocket was also standing by for takeoff. The two ships were in danger of colliding, yet Moscow refused to share the rocket’s intended trajectory. Even so, President Richard Nixon still gave the order for takeoff — proving to be one of the riskiest decisions in the climax of the “space race.”

THE THIRD REICH: OPERATION “UFO”

Produced by Russia 1 / 2006
1 X 60

When U.S. Admiral Byrd was asked to explain to Congress why his fleet withdrew from their Antarctic mission, he announced that the expedition was “attacked by strange ‘flying saucers.’” They “surfaced from under the water and moved with great speed, bringing heavy losses to the expedition team.” What were these things that drove out the American ships? Was it true that German scientists had been developing a type of “flying-disk” machine? Or was it something more sinister?

In the 1980s, Pablo Escobar, one of the richest and most violent drug lords in history, illegally imported four hippos into Colombia for his private zoo. Today, these hippos have multiplied to 32 and continue to pose a threat to the country, with archivists and exclusive interviews with Roberto Escobar, Pablo’s eldest brother, we detail Escobar’s rise to power and his ultimate demise. We also chronicle the plight of Colombian veterinarians as they work against the odds to contain the hippos, the living symbol of Escobar’s lasting terror.

Four passionate members of the Bigfoot Research Organization have embarked on a single mission: to find the creature known as Bigfoot. Former roadie Bobo, high-school science teacher Cliff, the skeptical scientist Ranae, and group president Matt Moneymaker are traveling across America for proof that Bigfoot is alive and well. By examining photos and videos, speaking to local witnesses, and using state-of-the-art technology, the team uncovers startling evidence of the mysterious creature that has eluded man for centuries.

As advancing human populations continue to clash with invasive species, the battle of man vs. animal finds itself in the backyards of America. In each episode, Dr. Andrew West sets out to investigate this natural conflict more deeply and what is happening on the front lines. From the murky alligator swamps of Louisiana to Hawaii’s pristine but deadly waters, humans are struggling to find a balance between conservation and survival as deadly animals find their way into our everyday lives.

South Florida is under siege from a new invasive species. This time they’re human-eating African rock pythons. These lethal giant constrictors are one of nature’s most aggressive snakes. As exotic pets or in the wild, they have attacked and killed humans. Now on the loose in Florida, people, native animals and the ecosystem aren’t safe. Currently confined to an area west of Miami, if these predators make it to the Everglades and interbreed with Burmese pythons, it could give birth to a terrifying hybrid of man-eating super snakes.

Scott Lope is one of America’s premier exotic animal rescuers. He saves all kinds of endangered and endangered creatures from unfit owners, illegal trade and harmful environments. His passion for reptiles has no limits, so when some reptiles evade retribution, Scott finds himself in the wilderness, working tirelessly with the goal of finding them a worthy home.

OF all the ancient Egyptian queens, none is as famous as the beautiful Nefertiti, ruler in the eighteenth dynasty alongside her husband. But in the twelfth year of Pharaoh Akhenaten’s reign, she disappeared completely. There is no mention of what became of her or where her mummy lies. Now scientist Zahi Hawass, with his exclusive access to Egypt’s royal mummies, is ready to undertake a major new investigation. With DNA testing, medical imaging and archaeological detective work, can he solve once and for all the mystery of this lost queen?

The Israeli Intelligence Agency, Mossad, is one of the world’s top five most effective intelligence agencies in the world. It is also, perhaps, the most secretive. Strangers are unwelcome. The agency’s honor is highly protected. Even wives do not know that their husbands work for the intelligence service. This special uncovers some of the most amazing operations and scandalous failures ever exposed about Mossad.

In 2008, modern-day pirates captured 111 vessels along the coast of Somalia — three times more than the previous year. The entire world watched in horror when the Ukraine cargo tanker Faina was captured with its tanks and grenade launchers. Who are these new freebooters? How are they different from the scoundrels of legend? And what do they do with the millions of dollars obtained through their piracy?
